We had hoped that the appropriation of $150,000, made by the Legislature for a memorial, would enable us to include in this one, two statues in bronze—one of Lincoln and one of Curtin—to be placed in the niches at the front, but thought of these had to be early abandoned, not, however, without the hope that some future Legislature would incline to authorize the moderate cost of these statues, and, perhaps, as avenues now make every side of this temple a seeming front, enlarge our plan, and fill five niches with statues.

56th Pennsylvania. On each of the three days of contest, where the fighting was the fiercest, Pennsylvania's dead lay thickest; and when the crisis came, and Longstreet was to overwhelm us in one grand assault, it was the Philadelphia Brigade, supported by other troops, he met; and as the remnant of Pickett's superb division fell back, bleeding in body and broken in spirit, his men carried with them to Lee, and to their (so-called) country, the answer to the vital question of the hour. "Whether this great land of ours was to be all free or all slave."

Address of Gen. James W. Latta

Yet war has its own peculiar fascination. There is such a thrill in the story, such a wonder in its tale, that man studies it closely, the boy pursues it intently. So full is it, of pathos and patriotism, purpose and performance, courage and endurance, spirit and sentiment, friendship and fellowship and vengeance, sacrifice and surrender, sympathy and sorrow, manhood and character, glory and privilege, triumph and achievement that its days are never forgotten, its participants are ever remembered. Then the honors it distributes, the fame it secures, the characters it builds, the small man soon finds his level, the big man quickly reaches his goal. "A million millions north and south

And while Pennsylvania rejoices, and do all the people of this great common brotherhood of ours at the happy restoration of the one flag to the one country, and rejoices too as do all the peoples at the coming of that world's universal peace which may not be so far: Pennsylvania must still be permitted to hold as a blessed memory that when the gun took the place of the ballot and statesmanship stood aside while the cannon thundered, when the grand old American flag, common arbiter of our national destinies, common preserver of our national unity, was with force and arm rudely torn from its balyards, 400,000 of her loyal sons supported, maintained and encouraged by splendid patriotism of all her people, went down into the dread vortex of battle with guns and swords, and cannon with manifold determination that they would not lay down their arms until the rebellion had been suppressed, the insurgent armies routed, the Union restored, that the flag, the grand old American flag, might once more float full and free over all the four corners of this great Republic.

Not Coughing Today?
Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Robust health is a great safeguard against attacks of throat and lung troubles, but constipation will destroy the best of health. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE.

Girl Tells How a Blotchy Skin Was Cleansed by a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard of Altamashaw, N. C. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in Eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, black-heads and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. D. is so penetrating that it strikes to the very root of Eczema or any other serious trouble, the soothing Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for this skin made that can compare with the great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D. D. D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. A 25 cent bottle will give you positive proof of the wonderful effectiveness of this great remedy. People's Drug Store.

Not Coughing Today?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. No alcohol in this cough medicine. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Robust health is a great safeguard against attacks of throat and lung troubles, but constipation will destroy the best of health. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills.

It is utterly impossible for him who runs and reads to be blind and deaf to the significance of events unless he is stone blind physically, intellectually and politically. Last week James A. Tawney, a one-time resident of old Adams, was defeated for the nomination for Congress, defeated in his own party after years in Congress, and holding the most important position in gift of the Speaker, Chairman of Appropriation Committee. Jim Tawney was switched by his own party after President Taft had put the administration seal of approval upon him, but his own party and people gave him the call to get down and out. And why? Because he voted for the Aldrich tariff bill, because he upheld Cannon, because he stood by the Taft failure, because he played into the hands of the great trusts, becoming one of their apologists in the House, but you can't fool all the people all the time and the day of reckoning is now at hand, and what is the message of this incident to the 20th Congressional District. Simply this, it asks, the question of every Republican whether they are going to ratify with their votes the support given the Aldrich tariff bill by Congressman Lafean and whether they are going to approve of this standing by Cannon and the destruction of representative government. When the Republican party throughout the country is punishing the Congressmen who so misrepresented their party, must not the Republicans of the 20th District face the approval or disapproval of Lafean for the very same reasons.

McIlhenny-King Reunion.

The McIlhenny and King families held their second annual reunion on last Saturday at Great Conewago Church near Hunterstown and more than one hundred of the descendants of these two families were present. Among those from a distance were Mrs. Carzell of Houston, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Allen of Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Hayes and sister Mrs. Dill of Pittsburg, Dr. James B. King of Eastford, Conn., Mrs. Rudolph Schick of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Gordon and Miss Martha Gordon of Waynesboro, Mr. and Mrs. Dunkle and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. McIlhenny and children of Harrisburg, Mrs. Martha Craighead of Carlisle, Mrs. Margaret J. Bayly of Baltimore.

About eleven o'clock in the morning a delicious luncheon was served in the chapel and after the feasting was over they gathered in the old church. Dr. James B. King acting as presiding officer, and Rev. Chas. Ditzell of Fairfield, making the opening prayer.

Wm. A. McIlhenny, of Gettysburg, president of the association, after a few remarks called for reading of minutes of the last meeting which were read by Miss Annie Majors, secretary. Mention was then made of a number who had written letters of regret, and the names of those who had died during the year were read. Victor King, McIlhenny of Pittsburg, Stuart Johnson of Harrisburg, Mrs. Margaret King of Kutztown, this county, and King McIlhenny of Fairfield.

Only one member of the Historical Committee was present. Wm. A. McIlhenny of Harrisburg, who told of his recollections during the year among old records with the result of satisfaction in establishing that our forefathers came to this country about 1745. Robert McIlhenny, John and Alexander McIlhenny, and had settled in what is now Adams county.

Dr. James B. King then made an address, touching the history of this section and drawing attention to the debt owed by the present generation to a

Knees Became StiffFive Years of Severe Rheumatism

Five years ago, I was afflicted with severe rheumatism, which made it impossible for me to move. I had been suffering from it for five years, and it was so bad that I could not even get out of bed. I had tried many different remedies, but nothing seemed to help. I was in great pain and was very weak. I had heard of a man named Sarsaparilla, and I decided to try it. I bought a bottle of Sarsaparilla and took it as directed. After a few days, I began to feel better. My knees became less stiff, and I was able to get out of bed. I continued to take Sarsaparilla, and after a few more days, I was able to walk. I was very happy and grateful for the cure. I have since recommended Sarsaparilla to many of my friends who are suffering from rheumatism.

There was a great opportunity to capitalize Republican disaffection in Pennsylvania by giving independent voters the opportunity to concentrate their strength upon a strong and reputable candidate for governor. This opportunity has been practically thrown away by the intrusion of a third party. The only thing that will be determined by the voting in November, aside from the sanity of the election of a governor, will be the ascertainment of how many Republicans there are in the ranks of the two great parties. There is greater reason for regret following this suicidal out-break in Pennsylvania than in any other State of the Union.

SONS OF PENNSYLVANIA

MEMORIAL TO THEIR MEMORY ERECTED AND DEDICATED

On the Battlefield of Gettysburg—
Something of Records of Pennsylvanians in Great Battle.

On the 13th day of June, 1907, Gov. Edwin S. Stuart of the great Keystone Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, placed his signature to an act making it a law, providing for an appropriation for the erection of a monument or memorial structure on the battlefield of Gettysburg, in memory of the volunteer soldiers, sailors and marines from Pennsylvania, who participated in the late Civil War, 1861 to 1865.

The act authorized the Governor to appoint nine citizens of Pennsylvania, all of whom shall have served in the Union Army in the War of the Rebellion to be known as the "Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Commission." They were given power to select a suitable site on the Gettysburg battlefield for the erection of a monument or such other memorial structure as they shall determine to commemorate the services of the soldiers of Pennsylvania in that battle and $150,000 was appropriated for the purposes of the act.

Governor Stuart named as the commission to erect the memorial structure the following nine Pennsylvania soldiers: General St. Clair A. Mulholland, General Henry S. Huidekoper and George P. Morgan, of Philadelphia. Judge Charles F. McKenna of Pittsburg, Colonel Edward A. Irvine of Conneltsville, Capt. E. L. Wittleser of Erie, Senator Henry H. Cummings of Tidouine, Senator J. C. Stineman of South Fork, and Senator Charles E. Quail of Auburn. Of this commission death first claimed Colonel Irvine and then the chairman of the commission, General S. Clair A. Mulholland. After the latter's death General Henry S. Huidekoper was selected as chairman. George P. Morgan has served the commission as secretary from their organization.

After over three years given to the duties prescribed under the Act creating this commission, they have at length ready for dedication the Pennsylvania memorial, a picture of which will be found on another page, on September 27th 1910.

It has been said that Pennsylvania and Virginia has produced more great soldiers than any other States in the Union. And Gettysburg was specially and emphatically a Pennsylvania battle. Not only was it the only great contest of the Civil War that was fought on Northern soil, but of the 360 commands comprising the Army of the Potomac, 86, or more than one-fourth of the whole number were from Pennsylvania and they were the peers of any in the service. Around the base of the new Pennsylvania memorial there will be 86 bronze tablets containing the individual names of the soldiers in the respective commands, forever perpetuating the sons of Pennsylvania who participated in the battle of Gettysburg. The following is the list of commands, the names of the members of which will be so preserved in bronze:

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

BEN AND MARY

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

It began the day Mary Lester was nine years old and Ben Holmes was ten. He overtook her on her way to the little country schoolhouse, which he was also bound. They were son and daughter of farmers.

They did not say much to each other on that mile walk. He had a stick of "real store gum" which he divided with her, and she said that if she ever broke her new slate pencil she would give him half of it. There might have been no love but for the red-headed boy who snatched her half-eaten apple away at the noon hour. She burst into tears over it, and Ben Holmes sailed into the offender and forced his head into a snowdrift. From that moment on, she was the vine and he the oak.

During four winter terms Ben Holmes and Mary Lester walked to school together, and when the snow was deep he carried her over the worst places on his back. They felt themselves "engaged" from the day he licked the red-headed boy. They used to discuss marriage in the most sober manner. It was years ahead of them, of course, but if any one had told them that their minds might undergo a change they would have been astonished.

When Mary was 13 she was sent away to stay with an aunt and attend a higher school. Ben had to take his place at farm work. They wrote each other every week, and the boy soon discovered that the girl was getting ahead of him. He spent his evenings catching up. He became his own teacher and added much to his store of knowledge.

At 15, when Mary came home, he saw a great change in her, but she could see very little in him. Higher education hadn't changed her so much, but mingling with the world had. She had a certain assurance and polish that Ben regarded with dismay. She chided him; she corrected him; she criticised him. Her three months at home brought little pleasure to him, and when she went away again for another long stay he felt that he had lost her. A few letters passed, and then they dropped out of each other's lives. It has been so thousands of times.

If plowing, sowing, planting and reaping makes a clodhopper, then Ben Holmes became one. He had freckles and sunburns and frostbites and calloused hands. If Mary Lester came home for a few weeks and he called at the house, he was overpowered. Night after night he had studied to improve while others slept, and yet she had soared above him. She held him at a distance; she wouldn't talk of school days; she smiled at his awkwardness.

It came to Ben at last that he must give it up. They called him a smart young man, but he realized that there was something that must go with education.

He could not quench his love for the girl he had fought for and carried on his back and built play-houses for. He carried it with him every day, but at the same time he recognized the hopelessness of it.

"Mary's home for good, I guess" announced his mother one evening as Ben sat bent over a book.

He had heard so three days before, but had said nothing.

He had heard that, too.

"And they say, Ben—they say that a young feller arrived to-day who's going to marry her. He's come to see her father about it. Polly Davis saw him as he drove up to the house, and she says he is slick as a button. Wears an overcoat trimmed with fur, and is rich. She says he will be a great match."

Ben had been preparing himself for the blow, but it came with stunning force after all. The letters in the book turned upside down, and he found his teeth shut hard.

"Polly says they are all going sliding down-hill this evening," continued the mother. "The hill road is as slippery as ice, and Jabez Turner has lent them his big sled and his oxen to draw it back up hill. It's about time for 'em to be at it now. Why don't you go and see the fun?"

The mother didn't know 'the son. She thought the past was the past with him. Nothing told her that at that very moment his love was burning more fiercely than ever. Go to join the party? Go even to see them from a distance? Not for all the money in the world. He looked at his mother in astonishment as she suggested it. And yet, ten minutes later, he laid aside his book, put on his overcoat and left the house.

The hill was down the road; he meant to walk in the opposite direction, but he didn't. He turned down the road. He did not mean to descend the hill by the footpath to the railroad tracks running along the valley, but he did that same thing. He did not mean to walk west to where the vehicles coming down the long and winding hill crossed the tracks, but he reached it just as the sled was being drawn up again after its first flight. There were half a dozen young people, and he could hear their talk and laughter. Mary Lester seemed happiest of all.

Ben said to himself that he would go home now, but he didn't go. It was blow upon blow to know that Mary and her lover were there, and yet he would wait and get a nearer view of them. The prisoner who realizes that his escape is hopeless is relieved when the judge pronounces sentence. Ben walked a hundred feet up the hill and sat down behind a stump. When the sled came along he could see and not be seen. Ten minutes later the distant shouts warned him that the descent had begun. Then another sound struck his ears. It was the heavy rumble of an approaching freight train. The sled might cross the tracks ahead of it, or it might fall by a few seconds. At best it was running a fearful risk.

Two hundred feet above the watching man the sled suddenly shot into view, and its half dozen occupants were shouting and laughing. Then came the hoarse shriek of a locomotive. They were higher up and could better see their danger. They began jumping off, and Ben noticed that the first one to go was a man. The last one left was Mary Lester! She was on her knees with her hands over her face. There were only seconds in which to act. Even if Ben could leap upon the sled there would be no time to control it, nor yet to seize the girl and leap off. The long train was thundering up. There was only one thing to do.

The girl did not see it done, but the engineer did. In the moonlight he saw the sled and knew that it must strike the middle of his train and be ground to splinters. Those on the road above did not see it. Their eyes were open, but they were blinded by the gleaming horror.

From behind the stump a human body shot out on the roadway just a second ahead of the sled and the praying girl. One runner passed over it. It was meant that this should happen. As the runner rose the course of the sled was deflected and it turned to the left and ran parallel with the rails until it struck a stone and overturned with a crash.

It was days after that night that Ben opened his eyes to recognize those about his bedside. There were broken bones and had bruises.

"Did I save Mary?" he asked his mother.

"Yes," she answered, "but don't talk now."

He had saved her for another, but even if that were so he felt a gladness in his heart and shut his eyes and slept. It was weeks before they would tell him all, and even then it was some one else who told the tale. It was Mary Lester herself. One of her arms was still in splints and she limped a bit, but there was a glad smile on her face as she stood beside his chair and said:

"Ben, dear Ben! He is a gentleman, and he was the first to jump! You are only a clodhopper, and yet you offered your life to save mine. Get well, Ben, because you know that old engagement holds good yet!"

The Delightful Limelight Man.

Forbes Robertson at a dinner praised the American critical sense.

"But," he said, sighing, "isn't your criticism in its clarity and directness too cruel sometimes?"

"I remember a brother actor who played one night in a small western town. At the climax of the third act of his play the limelight was always thrown upon him. In this town, however, the limelight man shot the light nine or ten feet to the left, and it was from the blackest shadow that my friend had to make his best speech."

"Naturally, at the end of the act he indignantly asked the limelight man why the deuce the light hadn't been thrown where it belonged."

"Fly in the way," the limelight man answered, biting a chew from a plug of tobacco.

"Why didn't you move the fly, then?" shouted my friend.

"The limelight man rolled his tobacco to the other cheek, looked at my friend dreamily and drawled, as he turned on his heel:

"If ye could act, I guess ye wouldn't want no limelight."

Gods of the Pueblo Indian.

The religions of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona embody a complex mythology in which a very large number of gods have part. In the sacred dances of the Indians these various deities are impersonated by men wearing masks and costumes, each peculiar to the particular god impersonated, and the details of which are rigidly adhered to year after year and generation after generation. To perpetuate the religion it is needful of course, that instruction in the character and attributes of the divinities be given to the children of the tribe; and to enable the young minds to grasp the intricacies of the study, small images of the gods are made of wood, painted and dressed in every detail just as the masked dancers are dressed who represent the same gods in the religious ceremonies.—Wide World Magazine.

Forming of Winds.

Points on the surface of the earth near the poles have a less rapid linear or circumferential velocity than points situated nearer the equator. Air, therefore, which leaves a position in a higher latitude having the velocity of the earth at that point and flows toward the equator where the earth's surface has a greater linear velocity, is apparently left behind by the more rapidly moving earth as it turns from west to east and the wind draws accordingly more and more from the east to the west, forming the north-east trades in the north latitude and the southeast trades in the south latitude. This is the general circulation of the winds on the surface of the earth, from east to west in the tropics, north and south of the equator, and from west to east in high latitudes.

SONS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

the Confederate forces to split the Union lines in two by an attack on the rear was only thwarted by the matchless skill of the cavalry under General D. M. Gregg, and when last of all came the climax to the battle of the last day, the matchless charge of Pickett's 15,000 men when they marched across the open field, a line a mile and a quarter in width, coming 1,600 yards in the face of a galling fire, Pennsylvania troops met the advancing forces at all points along the line, and the Philadelphia Brigade, standing in the "Bloody Angle," reaped the greatest laurels of a great day.

Pennsylvania in dedicating its great Triumphal Arch and calling to memory the great record of the sons of the Old Keystone State can again with pre-eminent fitness ponder those immortal words of Lincoln:

"But in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little more long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion, that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; but this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Death of Mrs. Reary.

It is utterly impossible for him who runs and reads to be blind and deaf to the significance of events unless he is stone blind physically, intellectually and politically. Last week James A. Tawney, a one-time resident of old Adams, was defeated for the nomination for Congress, defeated in his own party after years in Congress, and holding the most important position in gift of the Speaker, Chairman of Appropriation Committee. Jim Tawney was switched by his own party after President Taft had put the administration seal of approval upon him, but his own party and people gave him the call to get down and out. And why? Because he voted for the Aldrich tariff bill, because he upheld Cannon, because he stood by the Taft failure, because he played into the hands of the great trusts, becoming one of their apologists in the House, but you can't fool all the people all the time and the day of reckoning is now at hand, and what is the message of this incident to the 20th Congressional District. Simply this, it asks, the question of every Republican whether they are going to ratify with their votes the support given the Aldrich tariff bill by Congressman Lafean and whether they are going to approve of this standing by Cannon and the destruction of representative government. When the Republican party throughout the country is punishing the Congressmen who so misrepresented their party, must not the Republicans of the 20th District face the approval or disapproval of Lafean for the very same reasons.

McIlhenny-King Reunion.

The McIlhenny and King families held their second annual reunion on last Saturday at Great Conewago Church near Hunterstown and more than one hundred of the descendants of these two families were present. Among those from a distance were Mrs. Carzell of Houston, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Allen of Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Hayes and sister Mrs. Dill of Pittsburg, Dr. James B. King of Eastford, Conn., Mrs. Rudolph Schick of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Gordon and Miss Martha Gordon of Waynesboro, Mr. and Mrs. Dunkle and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. McIlhenny and children of Harrisburg, Mrs. Martha Craighead of Carlisle, Mrs. Margaret J. Bayly of Baltimore.

About eleven o'clock in the morning a delicious luncheon was served in the chapel and after the feasting was over they gathered in the old church. Dr. James B. King acting as presiding officer, and Rev. Chas. Dalzell of Fairfield, making the opening prayer.

Wm. A. McIlhenny, of Gettysburg, president of the association, after a few remarks called for reading of minutes of the last meeting which were read by Miss Annie Majors, secretary. Mention was then made of a number who had written letters of regret, and the names of those who had died during the year were read. Victor King McIlhenny of Pittsburg, Stuart Johnson of Harrisburg, Mrs. Margaret Knox of Knoxville, this county, and King McIlhenny of Fairfield.

Only one member of the Historical Committee was present. Wm. A. McIlhenny of Harrisburg, who told of his researches during the year among old records with the result of satisfactorily establishing that four brothers came to this county about 1745, Robert, Ezekiel, John and Alexander McIlhenny, and had settled in what is now Adams county.

Dr. James B. King then made an address, reviewing the history of this section and drawing attention to the debt owed by the present generation to a

Not Coughing Today?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Robust health is a great safeguard against attacks of throat and lung troubles, but constipation will destroy the best of health. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills.

J. BERNARD DELLONE died in Hanover last Thurs., after a lingering illness from consumption, aged 29 yrs. The funeral was held on last Saturday, services by Rev. Plans for Fiftieth Anniversary.

The commission to arrange for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg in 1913, have sent out notices that a conference of the representatives of the United States and the various States and Territories will be held in the capitol building at Harrisburg, Thursday, Oct. 13, and on the battlefield the following day for the purpose of planning for the golden jubilee celebration. All the States but four, the District of Columbia and all the Territories but two have consented to be represented at the gathering and aid in making the occasion a memorable one. The States whose governors have not yet responded to the invitation to participate are Delaware, Kansas, Louisiana and Texas. North Carolina and Georgia were the first to accept the invitation.

At the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Atlantic City, last week, a movement was started to have the encampment three years hence held at Gettysburg at the same time the celebration of the battle which decided the Civil War is conducted. This would enable the men in blue and the men in gray to meet on the historic grounds as comrades and not as enemies, as in the sixties.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has appropriated $5,000 for the payment of the expenses of the commission and the expenses of those attending the conference will be paid while they are in session with the commission at Harrisburg and Gettysburg.

General Louis Wagner of the Third National Bank of Philadelphia, is the chairman, and Captain Richard Boyle of Philadelphia, is the secretary of the commission. The members of the commission are Louis Wagner, brevet brigadier general United States Volunteers; William D. Nixon, brevet brigadier general United States Volunteers; E. Bruce Ricketts, major and brevet colonel First Pennsylvania Volunteers; E. Dale Benson, brevet major United States Volunteers; J. Richard Boyle, captain and assistant quartermaster, United States Volunteers; William Penn Lloyd, adjutant, First Pennsylvania Cavalry; Alexander McDowell, sergeant One Hundred and Twenty-first Pennsylvania Infantry; Irwin K. Campbell, corporal Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers; Lewis T. Brown, private One Hundred and Second Pennsylvania Volunteers.

In accord with an act of Congress a committee of three United States senators and three representatives were appointed by the presiding officer to co-operate with the commission and report to congress to enable Uncle Sam to join in making the celebration a success. The committee is as follows. Senate—Hon. George T. Oliver, Hon. Weldon B. Heyburn and Hon. Isador Rayner; House—Hon. James A. Tawney, Daniel F. Lafean and Hon. John Lamb. Mr. Oliver is chairman of the committee.

The following local arrangements have been made for the Anniversary Commission and representatives of the Nation and States. After their audience with the Governor on Oct. 13 they will proceed to Gettysburg. Upon their arrival here they will be met by carriages and be taken over the First Day's fight and Culp's Hill. In the evening there will be a public reception in the Court House and Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Chairman of the local committee who first invited the attention of the Governor to the anniversary will make an address. On Friday morning Oct. 14 the visitors will be taken over the Second and Third Day's fight and upon their return to town will hold a session at which tentative plans for the 50th anniversary celebration will be discussed and a working conclusion arrived at.

The Commission and representatives will make report to Congress and the Legislature of all the States and it is expected that this coming winter will see many of the states make provision for participation in the celebration.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE.

Girl Tells How a Blotchy Skin Was Cleansed by a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard of Altamahaw, N. C. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in Eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, black-heads and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. D. is so penetrating that it strikes to the very root of Eczema or any other serious trouble, the soothing Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for the skin made that can compare with this great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D. D. D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. A 25 cent bottle will give you positive proof of the wonderful effectiveness of this great remedy. People's Drug Store.

ALL OVER THE COUNTY

A SUBTERRANEAN STREAM UNDER FARM.

Injured While Installing Heating Apparatus in Reading Township School House.

On the property of Calvin Good, at Sell's Station, Union township, is a curiosity that may be of interest to our readers. About ten years ago Mr. Good dug a well near his dwelling. When the workmen reached a depth of 26 feet, they came to a solid limestone rock, which they prepared to remove. While thus employed, a portion of the rock gave way, revealing a subterranean stream of water. By the falling of the rock one of the workmen made a narrow escape from being precipitated into the stream. He called for help, and with difficulty extricated from his perilous position. Efforts were made to find the bottom, but in that Mr. Good failed. Straw and light pieces of wood were thrown into the water, which flowed swiftly away with the current, which flows in a northern direction. Its source and outlet are a mystery. Indeed, according to the views of scientists, the formation of the stream may be hundreds of miles distant—likewise its outlet. From the rock to the surface of the ground, a stone wall has been erected—the well being about six feet in diameter, and, as indicated, 26 feet to the body of water, the volume of which is unknown. Although the water passes through a strata of limestone rock, the water is soft and can be used for all purposes. It is clear as crystal, cool and refreshing to drink.

A. L. McClain representing the Waterman Waterbury Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., is installing heating apparatus in a number of the Reading township school buildings. While working at Round Hill he was struck in one of his eyes by a particle of steel and so seriously injured the member that he is now in the care of a York optician.

One evening last week six beautiful calves, the pride of Bender's Lane Farm, near East Berlin, strayed from their enclosure and rested upon the railroad track in front of the pink station house. The special train to Abbotstown rushed upon them, killing two and severely injuring two others.

Public Orchard Meeting.

There will be a public meeting in the orchard of Geo. F. Sites, near Fairfield, on Wednesday, September 23, 1910, for the purpose of showing the benefits resulting from improved methods in use in the model orchards conducted under the co-operation of the Division of Zoology of the State Department of Agriculture.

This is one of a series of fall meetings held throughout the State at this season. At these meetings treated trees will be compared with those not treated, and sprayed fruit shown beside unsprayed grown under the same conditions.

Lectures will be delivered by experts from the Department and an opportunity given for asking questions. Determinations of specimens will be made, and growers are invited to bring sprigs of diseased or infested trees for identification.

The Model Orchard Movement was inaugurated several years ago by Prof. H. A. Surface, Economic Zoologist, for the purpose of familiarizing the farmer and fruit grower with the best practical measures available for the control of destructive pests, and in order to show how well these operations have succeeded meetings are held in the orchards where both fruits and trees can be examined by all who attend.

The session begins at one o'clock P. M. The State's representatives will be present rain or shine.

SENATOR GRIM EN TOUR OF STATE

Whirlwind Rush Through Westmoreland County.

FIRST WEEK A GRAND SUCCESS

Speeches at Pittsburg and Uniontown and Receptions in Many Centers of Population in Six Counties.

Senator Grim, Democratic nominee for governor of Pennsylvania, began his tour of the state in Westmoreland county on Tuesday, Sept. 13, at Greensburg. Though he reached that destination at 6 o'clock in the morning he was met by a large delegation. He was escorted to the hotel where a breakfast was served, and for a couple of hours a constant stream of citizens visited him and volunteered assurances of support.

After this Senator Grim, accompanied by County Chairman J. Hilary Keenan and a number of leading Democrats, left for Scottsdale. At the latter place he shook hands with about 600 voters of all parties and many other than Democrats pledged him their support. One well known Republican worker said:

"Senator Grim, you will not only have my vote, but that of my two sons and my two sons-in-law. I feel that you are honest in your determination, if elected, to give the people of the state good government, something that we have needed for years."

Leaving Scottsdale, the next place visited was Mount Pleasant. Here Burgess A. T. Collins and a delegation of citizens of all parties met the candidate. A reception was held at the Grand Central hotel, and a number of workmen called on Senator Grim, and assured him that he would carry the town by a good majority. The candidate and his party then returned to Greensburg, where another reception was held.

In the evening the senator and his enthusiastic escort went to Irwin, Pa., the center of the Westmoreland county coal field and the scene of the big strike which had been on for some time. There an impromptu meeting was organized, attended by several hundred interested citizens, and the candidate for governor spoke at some length. At a late hour the party moved on to Pittsburg. Of his arrival there the Republican Pittsburg Dispatch said:

"Spick and span, said to be the handsomest of all the candidates for governor and looking as though no amount of campaigning would leave him, Webster Grim, Democratic candidate for the office of chief executive of Pennsylvania, arrived at the Colonial hotel shortly before midnight. The candidate had passed a busy day, with receptions and short speeches, at Mount Pleasant, Irwin, Scottsdale, Greensburg and other places, and is thinking over his speech for this great day at Kennywood park."

"Yes," said Mr. Grim, "the election in Maine yesterday is an indication of the drift of things all over the country. It is undoubtedly a Democratic year and the time is ripe in Pennsylvania for a change. It seems to me that we have reached the refinement, the acute stage of graft. The pendulum must swing in the other direction, and that must be away from the Republican organization, which has been in control and which must be held responsible for the deplorable conditions that have affected the morals of the whole state. It is a condition that can no longer be endured, and I am sure that a Democratic victory would bring a radical change for the better."

Senator Grim spent Wednesday in Pittsburg and attended the great Democratic picnic and barbecue at Kennywood park, where he made a speech, the salient features of which are given in another column. He was joined there by Hon. Thomas H. Greevy, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, who also spoke.

From Pittsburg candidates Grim and Greevy went to Wawconia county, where receptions were tendered to them in various places. Thence they passed into Greene county, where the local committees and Congressional Candidate Jesse H. Wise escorted them from place to place and to one enthusiastic reception after another. Friday afternoon and Saturday morning were spent in Fayette county, the feature of which was a splendid mass meeting at Uniontown on Friday night. Both candidates spoke and created the most intense enthusiasm. Saturday afternoon was spent in Somerset county in a series of receptions. The candidates spent Saturday night at Meyersdale, guests of their colleague on the ticket, Hon. Samuel B. Philson, Democratic nominee for state treasurer.

Keystone Treason.
[From the Philadelphia Record.]
There was a great opportunity to capitalize Republican disaffection in Pennsylvania by giving independent voters the opportunity to concentrate their strength upon a strong and reputable candidate for governor. This opportunity has been practically thrown away by the intrusion of a third party. The only thing that will be determined by the voting in November, aside from the surety of the election of a gangster governor, will be the ascertainment of how many Berries there are in the ranks of the two great parties. There is greater reason for regret following this suicidal outbreak in Pennsylvania because in Pennsylvania there was greater need of reformatory effort. No other state in the union suffers so grievously from corrupt misrule.

The report that Senator Hale will retire to private life at the expiration of his present term has been amply confirmed by the result of the election in Maine.

Profligacy the Present Menace.
The principal issue in the campaign which was just resulted in a magnificent victory in Maine was the profligacy of Republican administration both in the general and state governments. The people are beginning to feel the burdens and inquire into the causes of them. As a result of this investigation the people of Maine voted the Democratic ticket.

The government at Washington is costing the people of this country the enormous sum of $3,567,685.66 every day in the year. Estimating the population of the country at 90,000,000 that means that every man, woman and child pays about 26 cents a day for the maintenance of the government. This tax is levied in the increased prices of clothing, shoes, blankets, furniture, tableware and foodstuffs. A family of ten pays $2.50 a day for government, which is considerably more than the wages of the head of the average family.

Of course this ruinous rate cannot be maintained long. It will not only produce national bankruptcy, but make pauperism inevitable. The people of Maine realized this fact and applied the only remedy. That is, they voted out the party responsible for this menacing profligacy and voted in the party willing and able to correct the fault and cure the evil. Will Pennsylvania voters have like good sense?

Maine and Pennsylvania.
An analysis of the returns of the election in Maine reveals the important fact that the Democratic victory was not achieved by accessions from the Republican ranks. That is to say, while the Republican vote fell off only 6 per cent, the Democratic vote increased 17 per cent. The result, therefore, is attributable to the fact that Democrats who have not been voting in recent years voted this year, while a small percentage of the Republicans who have been in the habit of voting refrained from doing so this year.

In other words, Democratic apathy has been defeating the Democratic party in Maine during recent years just as the same cause has worked the same effect in Pennsylvania. At every election except that of 1908 since 1904, a full Democratic vote would have elected the Democratic ticket in Pennsylvania, and last year 80 per cent of the Democratic vote would have elected the Democratic candidate for justice of the supreme court.

Maine has set the example of political vigilance and energy this year, and it is to be hoped the Democrats of Pennsylvania will follow it. If they do the recent victory in Maine will look like a plugged penny compared with what will happen in this state on the 8th of November.

The Divided Opposition.
[From the Philadelphia Record.]
Democrats of Pennsylvania who have faithfully adhered to the party through good and evil report and have joined the Keystone Party movement in a sincere desire to end machine misrule and corruption cannot too earnestly consider what is involved in persisting in this course. In a divided opposition is the only hope of the Penrose machine to foist its batch of political nondescripts upon the government of the commonwealth.

If the Democratic candidate for governor, Webster Grim, were objectionable in his personal character, or wanting in abilities or in Democratic principles, there would be ample cause for this schism. But as his personal character is above reproach, as his ability has been fully tested in the state senate, and as the soundness of his Democratic principles is not challenged, it is something like mockery in Democrats as well as in independent Republicans who are hostile to the machine rule to abandon this candidate to follow a will-o'-the-wisp of a candidate who says he belongs to "the Roosevelt-Bryan party." What this may mean, unless it be the fantastic New Nationalism, it is hard to say.

Voters over twenty-two years of age who neglected to get assessed this year and is therefore unable to pay taxes in order to qualify himself to vote, can pay taxes on or before Saturday, October 8, 1910, on an assessment made last year, either where he lives now or where he lived then. The law requires that a state or county tax be paid thirty days before the election. Therefore, a voter who was assessed last year, anywhere within the state and failed to pay then, and has not been assessed this year, may pay last year's tax, which will qualify him to vote this year.

An Interesting Conundrum.
But if Ballinger is innocent and abused why don't his friends on the committee attend the meetings and exonerate him instead of making a grand rush for the exit?—Indianapolis Sun.

The first duty of a citizen is to see that he is qualified to vote and that assured he can fulfill his civic obligations without trouble on election day by casting his ballot for the splendid Democratic ticket.

That little affair in Maine the other day was simply a reminder that this is a Democratic year and the right time for every Democrat to get into the band wagon.

Maine didn't go "hell-bent" this year. It took the opposite course and landed on "the evergreen shore," so to speak.

Meantime the mighty hunter appears to have found a hole to crawl in.

GRIM AND GREEVY AT PITTSBURG

Democratic Candidates Receive Tremendous Ovation.

GOSPEL OF TRUE DEMOCRACY

Senator Grim Pleads For Conservation of Resources of State and Mr. Greevy Denounces Tariff Robbery Under Legal Sanction.

Never in the history of the Democracy has there been such a turn out of voters at a Democratic rally in the western end of Pennsylvania as assembled on Wednesday, Sept. 14, at Kennywood Park, a beautiful pleasure resort, delightfully situated on a high eminence overlooking the many industrial establishments along the Monongahela river, near Pittsburg. The day was an ideal one, being just cool enough for the candidates to go through the ordeal of hand shaking without any danger of perspiring.

The principal attraction aside from the speech-making by the Democratic nominees and Congressman Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, was a mammoth ox-roast, an old-fashioned barbecue. The invitations to the feed were extended throughout Allegheny and neighboring counties, and by 10 o'clock in the morning the park was well filled with hungry as well as enthusiastic Democrats and their friends, who came to hear the gospel of a free and untainted Democracy and to eat beef that was not made under the stamp of the beef trust.

Senator Grim took "Conservation" for the text of his speech, and denounced the reckless extravagance with which the natural resources of the state have been dissipated under the mismanagement of machine politicians. He said in part:

"You petty grangers in Pittsburg, some of whom recently have been convicted, had high examples before them, especially in Philadelphia and Harrisburg. It is but a few years ago that a distinguished citizen of Pennsylvania, according to report, sat in his own chamber at midnight to accommodate under the forms of law, certain men in getting away with valuable treasures."

It is but a few years ago that a distinguished citizen of Philadelphia offered to pay that city two and a half million dollars for a railway franchise for which the people of the building of the state capital at Harrisburg, in which nearly $5,000,000 was stolen, is still fresh in our memory. The development in the filtration suits in Philadelphia four years ago revealed a system of contracting unparalleled. The method of contracting at Riverside, the same old. The people of Philadelphia rose up in their might and swept the political machine that was responsible for it from its power.

"My friends, if you want to retain into your full possession this great nation of ours, with its boundless natural resources and transmit it after your death unimpaired to your children as a priceless heritage, if you want to maintain as the safeguard of your liberties and those of posterity, equal rights for all and special privileges for none, I beseech of you, you pay more attention to the character of the men you choose for your officers. The place to right it is at the polls. You should conserve not only the natural resources which a kind creator has bestowed upon us with such a lavish hand, but you should preserve our political morality and equality as well. Then and then only will the future of our nation be secure."

Thomas H. Greevy, of Altoona, candidate for lieutenant governor, spoke on the tariff and the Republican betrayal of party promises as evidenced by the Payne-Aldrich bill. He said, in part:

"This increased cost of living is one of the great causes for political discontent in the country today. Almost every article of necessity used by the people is taxed. Everything you eat and everything you wear is taxed by this bill. On the free list, however, we find dried acorns, ashes, stuffed birds, bones, cuttlefish, fish skin, fossils, horse hair, hoots, ice, joss sticks, old junk, leeches, sea weeds, orange peel, mother of pearl, rags and bologna sausage. Immediately upon the signing of this bill the Republicans issued a campaign document in which they declared that they had reduced the tariff on beef, pork, bacon and ham and laid 25 per cent. on corn meal, 5 per cent. on every one knows it is just the reverse. There is not an individual present but who would testify that the cost of living has increased since the tariff bill went into effect. Is it any wonder that there is so much dissension in Republican ranks?"

There is plenty of time yet to arrange for setting out the vote on election day, but there is none so much to arrange for getting voters registered and their taxes paid. These things are as essential to party success as voting. But voting is important, too, and when the registration is complete and the taxes all paid centre your activities on getting out the vote.

Voters in third class cities have two more opportunities to register for the coming election. The next registration day is September 20 and the last chance is Saturday, October 1. It isn't wise, however, to wait until last day. Discharge this civic obligation on Tuesday, September 20.

"Remember the Maine," used to be a common expression and by the same token it might be worth while to know what the result of the Maine election.
